- provide you with a SOA to explain the basis for the advice, and information about fees and commissions and any associations which could have influenced the advice
- on an ongoing basis, a ROA will be provided instead of a SOA if there have been no significant changes in your personal circumstances or the basis of the advice has not significantly changed since your last SOA was provided. You have a right to request a copy of your ROA at any time.

If you do this, you should understand that your Financial Adviser will not consider your full needs, objectives and circumstances when making recommendations. Your Financial Adviser should also provide you with relevant warnings when providing you with limited advice. Please read these warnings carefully.

You should always receive a Statement of Advice (SOA) or Record of Advice (ROA) when your Financial Adviser makes a recommendation.

Your Financial Adviser may meet with you several times to discuss possible strategies before finalising their recommendations. Any general discussions should not be considered as advice and you should not rely solely on information given to you in these discussions.

You should only rely on advice documented to you in a SOA or ROA and explained to you by your Financial Adviser. You should take the time to read and understand the SOA or ROA given to you, before signing or acting on them.
